Democratic Senators Propose to Control Senate Business.

THE CAUCUS FIXING PLANS.

A Definite Policy Regarding the Silver Question.

a Very Interesting One-The Demoeratic Cancus Committee in Constant Session.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The brief proceedings in the Senate yesterday, coming after the action of the day before, indicate that the parties in the Senate are beaffection on the Republican side on the part of a few silver men, but generally hey have adopted the policy of annoying heir opponents by insisting upon the mmediate disposition of the silver queson. They are therefore resisting every action to adjourn and calling for yeas and nays to put the senators on record. One of the Republican leaders in financial matters said that they would keep this line of action until the majority were obliged to proceed to business. He insisted that the Democrats could not keep this line of action until the majority were obliged to proceed to business. He insisted that the Democrate could not charge the Republicans with partisan action maximuch as they were simply tryling to give immediate effect to the president's anggestions in the message. The Democratic senators resent the attempt of the Republicans to control the business of the Serate and dictate the character of the legislation. They have resolved that they will not permit action until they have themselves agreed upon a line of policy, and the conduct of the Republicans has had the effect of consolidating all elements on the Democratic side upon this resolution.

Meanwhile the Democratic caucus committee is in almost constant session, trying to arrange a plan of action, and the keenest parliamentarians on the Republican side are quietly conferring among themselves to devise means to carry out their ideas, so that the session in the Senate promises to be interesting. Between now and Monday it is hoped by the friends of the administration in the Senate that some plan of action may be agreed upon on the silver question.

Just now attention is concentrated upon the struggle in the House between the silver and anti-silver delegates. A conference of opposing forces on the silver question was called for 10 o'clock this morning and the eagerness and anxiety of each side was made apparent by the carly arrival of the parties to the conference.

The conference of silver and anti-silver men has reached an agreement by which the general debate on the bill for the repeal of the purchase clause of the Sherman act will be limited to eleven days. This will be followed by a debate of three days under the five-minute rule, when voting will begin on the bill and various silver amendments. The present arrangement is that the repeal bill will prescribe the method of psocedure, and the general debate begin at once. If carried out this program will bring the House to a vote on the bill and amendments on August 28th.

THE PRESIDENT'S STATEMENT.

Why He Leaves the Capitol for Buzzard Bay.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 .- The following tatement was made by the president and 'My absence from the capital at this time may excite some surprise, in view of the intense interest in the subject now Though my views and recommendations have already been officially submitted to that body and though I am by no means certain I could further aid in bringing about the result which seems so necessary, it would be a great satisfaction to me if I could remain at the scene of action. But whether I am here or elsewhere, I shall look with hope and confidence to the action of those upon whom the responsibility now rests of relieving our people from their present dangers and difficulties.

"I am going back to my summer home at the seashore because I am not sufficiently rested from the strain to which I have been subjected since the 4th of March, to fit me to again assume the duties and labors which await me here. I have been counseled by those whose advice I cannot disregard that the further rest I contemplate is absolutely necessary to my health and strength. I shall remain away during the month of August and devote myself to rest and outdoor recreation. My day's doings will be devoid of interest to the public and I shall be exceedingly pleased if I can be free from the attentions of newspaper correspondents."

The President Has Not Deserted Nor Abandoned His Post,

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 .- The Herald's Washington special says: A wild report was circulated in Washington last night to the effect that Cleveland would leave and go to Buzzard's Bay today, because he feels he is beaten in his effort to secure he feels he is beaten in his effort to secure the repeal of the Sherman act. The silver men were radiant with joy and declared the President had abandoned his post and surrendered the leadership which he assumed in his message. The simple truth is, adds the correspondent, that a domestic event in Cleveiand's family will require him to be at the side of his wife within seven days, and it is a arcely decent politics to draw such delicate matters. Mr. Brown (Democrat, Indiana) followed Raynor. He was in lavor of the coinage of silver, but in view of the havo wrought by the Sherman law and the demands of the Democratic platform, he would vote for repeal with or without conditions. In addition to repealing the Sherman law the Democratic platform promises to coin both gold and silver, without discrimination against either. That promise must be redeemed. He said he would not attempt to speak for the present, but if he were to do so he would pay Cleveland the favor of coining both gold and silver in accordance with the terms of the Democratic play "rm.

Mr. Bland, rising to open for tree coinage, "expressed regret that a number of gentlemen, of whom the speaker who had just sat down was one of the most capable, had seen fit to change their position on this question, to abandon the large partisan voters who aided in giving them the seats they occupy and turn their faces to the east and their backs to the west. As to the declarations in the Democratic pistform, he asserted that it was the understanding that the free coinage of silver would necessarily mean the repeal of the Sherman law. The two are the repeal of the Sherman act. The silver so antagonistic that they cannot exist at the same time, but they were met now with the suggestion that we legislate a piecomeal repeal of the Sherman law and take our chances in securing anything in its place, which shall meet the pierge of the platform to coin both silver and gold. "This is because a panic is upon us. The voting masses of the country may become panic stricken on election day. I am afraid those, who are like the gentleman from Indiana, will feel the force of that panic."

Mr. Bland sketched briefly the history of the financial legislation of recent years and asserted that the same cry of "going to a silver basis." had been raised against the bill of 1878, with which his name had been connected. He sent to the clerk's desk and had read an extract from the report of the British parliamentary committee on Indian currency to the effect that in its opinion, the repeal of the Sherman purchasing act would be followed by further depreciation in the price of silver, "and we are deliberately asked here," continued Bland, "to vote to bring about a decrease of 15 cents an ounce in the price of silver before providing for the restoration of its colnage. No man can defend that vote before his constituency, who is in favor of free coinsage." Upon the question of ratio, he argued

All the reasons assigned for Democratic success but one, were incorrect. It was because it had declared unequivocally for a remonetization of silver that it had succeeded. It was not his purpose to follow up the evolutions of political parties. Elected last fall by a people brave, buoyant, and hopeful, he knew their industries had been prostrated by the course of the past two administrations, by the base surrender of those who had been elected on a silver platform and on silver promises."

Mr. Wheeler, of Alabama, closed the discussion for the day with a plea for a larger volume of currency, and then the House adjourned. THE OUTLOOK

The Worst That Can Happen Will Be Compromise.
